

EMOTIONAL DEVELOPMENT OF CHILDREN WHO GET REJECTION BY STEP PARENT

(Studies in Case of 8 Year Old Child in Duren Sawit Distric, East Jakarta)

2017

Ririn Yulianti

ABSTRACT

This research aims to describe emotional development of children who get rejection by step parent, which held on March to June 2015. This research was using qualitative methode. Subject was a 8 years old boy who get a rejection by his step parent. Data collection techniques used was interviews, observation, and documentation. Analysis techniques used are simple matching pattern. To check the validity of the data was an extension of the participations, increasing persistence, using reference material, triangulations and auditing technical.

The result of the research showed that emotional development of children who get rejection of parents are not optimal, and if it does not develop properly it will cause some treatment tends to be negative on the child. Children who get rejection of the parents are making the child feel insecure about himself and expressing his emotions towards the less well as rebellious, angry, hitting, crying, kicking, screaming, resulting in emotional development of children become optimal and maximal.

Keyword : emotion development, emotion expression, rejection, step parent