

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

5.1 Conclusion

The writer choosed Double Act novel, a novel which written by Jacqueline Wilson as a corpus in this study. The writer used five factor model theory of personality by McCrae and Costa to identify personality traits of Ruby and Garnet as identical twin character in Double Act novel. Through their personality traits, the writer analysed their personality types by using theory of personality types from Carl Jung to analyze personality types of identical twin through attitudes and functions types.

Based on two research questions “How are personality types of identical twin reflected in Double Act novel?” and “What are personality traits of identical twin portrayed in Double act novel?”, the writer found that this identical twin, Ruby and Garnet, has different dominant personality traits and different dominant personality types. The dominant personality trait of Ruby is ambitious. The finding of personality traits of Ruby shows that Ruby belongs to extraversion-thinking type. Meanwhile, the dominant personality trait of Garnet is anxious. The finding of personality traits of Garnet shows that Garnet belongs to extraversion-feeling type and introversion-thinking type. Ruby as the older has personality traits such ambitious, irritable, antagonistic, fun loving, passionate, talkative, liberal, original, prefers variety, affectionate, and self-conscious. On the other hand, Garnet has personality traits such as anxious, imaginative, affectionate, original, well-organized, fun loving, self-pitying, lenient, and softhearted. The writer also found that the dominant personality of Ruby is extraversion with thinking type. It shows that Ruby is a person that focuses on the result of her goals and she is also objective in seeing her dream. Garnet has extraversion with feeling type and introversion with thinking type. Extraversion with feeling type shows that Garnet is disinclined to be alone so she always needs Ruby. Moreover, it is also shows that Garnet is a sociable person. Garnet is also introversion with thinking type. It means that Garnet's orientation thinking based on subjective factor, that's the reason why she always feel discouraging in some event in the plot.

5.2 Suggestion

After conducting this study, the writer suggest to the readers, particularly the students of English Department of UNJ who are interested in deeper studying about personality types of a character in novel can use different corpus such as movie script or so on. The writers also suggest to the reader to read books about Jung personality type theory such as Jungian Psychology in Perspective by Mary Ann Mattoon or other e-book from website which can be downloaded.
