Personality is essential for people because it is what makes person different with other. This study aims to analyze and classify personality types of Ruby and Garnet through their personality traits in Double Act Novel written by Jacqueline Wilson. McCrae and Costa divided five factors model of personalities into five categories: extraversion, neuroticism, openness, agreeableness, and conscientiousness. Each of the factors has kinds of personality traits. Jung stated that people have different personality types. He classifies personality type into eight types: extraversion-thinking, extraversion feeling, extraversion-sensing, extraversion-intuiting, introversion-thinking, introversion-feeling, introversion-sensing, and introversion-intuiting. This study is using descriptive analytical method. The data are taken from narration which reflected personality traits of Ruby and Garnet. The result of the study shows that the dominant personality trait of Ruby is ambitious. The finding of personality traits of Ruby shows that Ruby belongs to extraversion-thinking type. In contrast, the dominant personality trait of Garnet is anxious. The finding of personality traits of Garnet shows that Garnet belongs to extraversion-feeling type and introversion-thinking type.
