

ABSTRACT

Devara Janitra, The Use of Internet as Medium of Sociology Learning, Case Study: Students of class X IIS 2 SMA N 35 Jakarta. Study. Jakarta. Program Studies Sociology of Education, Department of Sociology, Faculty of Social Sciences, State University of Jakarta, in 2015.

This study aims to describe how the use and impact of the Internet as a medium of learning in class X sociology IIS 2. In addition, researchers also wanted to know about the factors driving and inhibiting factors in using the internet as a medium of learning sociology.

Researchers used the conceptual framework of learning media, informasionalisme which is where the main source of production based on knowledge and information and network society by Manuel Castells and constructivism learning by Paul Suparno. The researchers also used a qualitative approach and descriptive. The author in collecting data using primary data and secondary. The primary data obtained through interviews structured and unstructured. Secondary data were obtained from books, articles, internet as reinforcing the findings of empirical data. The informant in this research were eleven people including eight students of class X IIS 2, two educators subjects of sociology and the person in charge of ICT in SMAN 35 Jakarta.

Researchers found two findings in this study. First, the Internet as a medium of learning sociology learners X IIS 2 SMAN 35 Jakarta. The findings include a learning process sociology, sociology in the form of learning using the Internet, the views of teachers and students on the Internet, activities and intentions of students in accessing the internet, factors driving and inhibiting factors utilization of the Internet as a medium of learning sociology. Internet as a medium of teaching sociology to be a forum for finding and sharing information that support the formation of new knowledge, to communicate, as a discussion among learners and educators. Second, the impact of the Internet as a medium of learning sociology associated with the role of educators in learning, the learning function of the media and the effectiveness of the Internet as a medium of learning. Utilization was also found an increase in the intensity of interactions and create a dependence on the internet that examined the concept of learning and community informasionalisme network. In addition, the utilization of the Internet as a medium of learning sociology seen in the view of constructivism learning.

Keywords: Internet, Medium of Sociology Learning, Students